“Watching people change behaviors to become healthier people because when they are healthier, they can live a fuller life.”

About Chris Popp, MD

As a physician, Dr. Chris Popp loves the endless opportunities to learn while also helping and educating others. He says his favorite part of working in healthcare is “watching people change behaviors to become healthier people because when they are healthier, they can live a fuller life.” In his practice, Dr. Popp places a lot of emphasis on mental health and strives for individualized treatment “by giving them the time, information, and guidance they need.” He proudly adds, “I approach practice as a collaborative effort.”

In his free time, Dr. Popp enjoys reading, off-road bicycling, and viewing art. He has three children, all of whom are working as or pursuing a field in healthcare or science.
