“My goal is to energize, empower, and encourage my patients to reach their highest potential by giving them the support and the tools they need to meet their personal health goals.”

About Shalaunda Gray, MD

Dr. Shalaunda Gray loves the endless opportunities to teach, learn, and serve others as a physician. She explains, “I was thrilled to find an opportunity where physicians are given adequate time and resources to provide education to patients about their health challenges and treatment options.” She finds it deeply rewarding to make a positive difference in her patients’ lives and loves building strong relationships through respect and active listening. “My goal is to energize, empower, and encourage my patients to reach their highest potential by giving them the support and the tools they need to meet their personal health goals,” she says.

In her free time, Dr. Gray loves watching movies with family and spending time in worship.
