“I try to help patients focus on what they want to accomplish and help guide them to their best healthcare goals.”

About Brian Hilgenfeld, MD

Dr. Brian Hilgenfeld says he has “always felt a calling to help others.” He adds, “I chose this profession as a way to give back to my community as well as to challenge myself to lifelong learning.” Preventative care and improving quality of life are important parts of his practice. “I try to help patients focus on what they want to accomplish and help guide them to their best healthcare goals,” he explains. He likes learning about his patients lives and especially enjoys helping his senior patients live healthy, active, and full lives.

In his free time, Dr. Hilgenfeld loves hiking with family. He also enjoys woodworking, camping, and spending time by the lake. While in college, he earned his pilot license.
