“I sit with them, talk to their families, and try to understand what motivates them.”

About Nadia Noor, MD

Growing up, Dr. Nadia Noor had several health professionals in her family, so the journey into the profession felt natural. Her favorite part of being a physician is building relationships with patients and serving as their advocate. “I sit with them, talk to their families, and try to understand what motivates them,” she explains. She especially loves caring for the senior population. “They have a deep perspective on life, and I am always learning so many life lessons from them,” she explains.

In her free time, Dr. Noor can be found immersing herself in nature. She especially loves hiking or visiting the beach with her children. Spending time with family is important to her. She also enjoys practicing yoga and martial arts.
