“I work to learn as much as possible about the patient's entire story, not just their medical history.”

About Kevin Johnson, MD

From putting band-aids on his grandparents as a child to honoring his senior patients now, Dr. Kevin Johnson has always had a passion for helping people. Meeting patients and their families is his favorite part of being a physician. He strives to help people achieve their health goals, explaining, “I work to learn as much as possible about the patient’s entire story, not just their medical history.” He is a firm believer in minimizing unnecessary medications. He has spent over fifteen years in medical education and has assisted with the training of over 100 Family Medicine physicians.

In his free time, Dr. Johnson can be found enjoying the outdoors with his family. He especially loves gardening and fly fishing.
