“It is my personal mission to keep each of my patients in the best health, on the fewest amount of medications, as active as possible, and out of the hospital.”

About Cora Sharfman, MD

From a young age, Dr. Cora Sharfman “aspired to be a catalyst of change, hope, and comfort.” She loves caring for her senior patients and vows to always advocate for them. “I love more than anything having the privilege of becoming a part of my patients’ lives and getting to know them and their family members,” she says. She believes in a holistic approach to healthcare. “It is my personal mission to keep each of my patients in the best health, on the fewest amount of medications, as active as possible, and out of the hospital,” she says.

In her free time, Dr. Sharfman enjoys spending time with her husband and children. She loves the ocean, often advocating for its conservation. She hopes to one day go ice-diving in Antarctica.
