About Andy Davis, MD

A fascination with science and the human body as well as the ability to deeply connect with patients attracted Dr. Andy Davis to the medical field.

“Earning a patient’s trust and helping them and their family through a difficult time is the most rewarding aspect of my profession,” he says. He finds it useful to learn his patients’ healthcare goals, but he also likes getting to know them as people “instead of just their medical conditions.” He is passionate about preventative care and explains that he likes “seeing patients as often and as soon as they need.”

In his free time, Dr. Davis can be found spending time with his wife, daughter, and two dogs. He says his favorite hobby is losing to his wife in their weekly chess games.
