“I hope that my patients all enjoy a superb quality of life and remain in control of their goals and wishes as we all continue to age.”

About F. Matt Kuhlmann, MD, MSCI

Dr. Matt Kuhlmann has always been interested in the biological sciences, especially infectious diseases. He aims to treat patients like family and wants them to feel comfortable discussing their health concerns. “I hope that my patients all enjoy a superb quality of life and remain in control of their goals and wishes as we all continue to age,” he says. In addition to caring for seniors as a physician, he has worked with seniors through his church and regional senior living organization. “I have gained a better understanding of the specific needs of St. Louis’ wisest population,” he says.

When not with patients, Dr. Kuhlmann can be found watching his children’s basketball, baseball, and swim teams. He also likes reading, cycling, and cooking.
