“Listening to patients is key in my practice, and I love “partnering” with them to help them reach their goals.”

About Tolulope Awolaja, APRN, FNP-C, GNP-BC

Tolulope Awolaja has always been passionate about fighting for human rights and initially imagined herself as a lawyer. After working in a nursing home, she realized that healthcare is her calling. “I still get to advocate for my patients. This time, for better healthcare and quality of life,” she says. Listening to patients is key in her practice, and she loves “partnering” with them to help them reach their goals. She has always felt a connection with seniors and loves the opportunity to care for them. She also specializes in wound care and family medicine.

Tolulope Awolaja loves learning about other cultures and hopes to visit sixty countries by her sixtieth birthday. She is a follower of Jesus Christ and enjoys crocheting and listening to audiobooks in her free time.
