“I always try to lead by example and encourage patients to be their best version of health they can be.”

About Andrew King, DO

“Treat patients like family and you won’t go wrong.” This principle was shared with Dr. Andrew King during his residency from his mentor, which plays a key part of his practice. “I always try to lead by example and encourage patients to be their best version of health they can be,” he says. He is committed to caring for patients as a whole, rather than only focusing on ailments. “I try to encourage healthy lifestyle and dietary habits with patients,” he says. He adds that he wants his senior patients to “feel they have a team by their side on their health journey.”

In his free time, Dr. King can be found spending time with his family or enjoying the outdoors. He also loves exploring the mountains, gardening, and harvesting produce.
